The opportunity / Te Whiwhinga mahi

You will work closely with our central government practice lead and other consultants and leaders from across the business. You will be part of a team that aims to help clients:

- achieve their potential
- design solutions that work
- deliver tangible results and outcomes for their customers.

This position is in Wellington as part of our growing central government practice, but you can expect to work on projects across our entire range of clients, both here in New Zealand and in Australia. Our projects are usually team-based, both short and long term, and may involve both working in-house with our clients and from our offices.

About you / Ko wai koe

You will be intuitive, intensely curious and deeply interested in understanding how things work.

You will have experience in analysis, problem solving, business case writing and presenting advice to senior officials, Ministers or Boards.

You will enjoy working with people from a range of backgrounds and professional disciplines and will have excellent interpersonal skills.

To be successful in this role, you will:

- Be degree qualified with around ten years' experience in the government sector
- Understand the role of government, regulators, and the policy process
- Be a skilled practitioner of government accountability, budgeting, procurement and/or business case processes
- Be an excellent listener who will be trusted by clients to identify their needs and deliverables
- Have superior written communication skills, and have experience delivering accurate and engaging written and visual content that is tailored to the audience, along with confidence in presenting these ideas to senior management, Ministers or Boards
- Be comfortable self-managing your work, juggling competing demands and deadlines and prioritising work efficiently
- Enjoy networking, meeting new people and building relationships
- Want to learn new skills and grow your career.

The position is Wellington based but will involve work on projects for clients in a range of locations and potential associated domestic travel.

Remuneration will be negotiated based on the successful candidate's experience, background and fit within our current business.
